Get On the Floor with the Fallen

"Once, when famed American novelist William Faulkner was attending a dinner party, a polite man pulled a dining chair out for one of the women, who, busy talking with other guests, was unaware that he had done so. She fell to the floor, surprised and chagrined.

Faulkner sat down on the floor with her. The gesture - noble, tender, humane - was much in character. Faulkner could not abide harm or diminishment. He preferred to get on the floor with the fallen. That's where he found his muse."

God calls us to be compassionate. Never ask anyone to rise to your position, but first sit with them in theirs, and then in love, help them up.

Romans 12:15

Rejoice with those who rejoice, weep with those who weep.

Hebrews 13:3

Remember those in prison as if you were their fellow prisoners, and those who are mistreated as if you yourselves were suffering.

I love you all,

Tim
