How to Get Things Done In Russia

The BBC reports,

Moscow residents say they have found that the only way to get the council to clear snow is to write the name of opposition leader Alexei Navalny on it. Mr. Navalny is Russia's best-known critic of President Vladimir Putin.

Posts on Facebook and Twitter have received thousands of likes, after disgruntled residents took to social media, saying that they tried spray-painting "Navalny" on the city's deep snow out of frustration at the authorities' slowness.

One user said the move prompted immediate reaction and that council workers removed the graffiti "within hours".

If you want to get rid of a problem in Russia, spray paint the name of an opposition leader on it and the problem will disappear. Apparently, the Russian government is more motivated by the fear of opposition than it is by the idea of serving its communities.

What about you? What motivates you, self-preservation or service?

John 13:34

A new command I give you: Love one another. As I have loved you, so you must love one another.

I love you all,

Tim
