Do You Feel Plutoed?

Poor Pluto. First, it's a planet and then it's not anymore. It has become the Rodney Dangerfield of our solar system. In an award-winning move that probably did not make the "sub planet" feel better, the term "plutoed" was declared the Word of the Year by the American Dialect Society in Anaheim, California, a little over a decade ago. The word means "to demote or devalue someone or something."

Do you ever feel "plutoed" in your life? Do you feel like people don't appreciate you like they should? Maybe you get that feeling on the job, when you're working harder than anyone else and somebody else gets the credit, the promotion, and the attention.

You may get that feeling in your marriage or in the home, whether you're the husband, wife, parents, or children. You may even sometimes feel "plutoed" by the church. Maybe you feel that your difficulties or problems are being ignored.

Will you remember a few things? First, remember the value God placed on your soul by sending Jesus to die to save it. Second, remember that God's system of rewarding is on His time and His terms. Third, remember that you are valuable because of who you are, a child of God. Finally, remember your obligation is to help everyone around you feel valued. There are plenty of people around you who are in need of being "de-plutoed," and God has uniquely equipped you as a follower of His for this task.

Galatians 2:20

I have been crucified with Christ and I no longer live, but Christ lives in me. The life I now live in the body, I live by faith in the Son of God, who loved me and gave himself for me.

I love you all,
Tim
