Spite Is Always a Bad Investment

The staff of grunge.com writes:

In 1962, Warren Buffett began buying stock in textile conglomerate Berkshire Hathaway. However, with the price per share in steady decline, Buffett and Hathaway chairman Seabury Stanton made an oral agreement that Stanton would buy back Buffet's shares at $11 1/2 per share. But when Stanton presented the contract in writing, Buffet noticed that the price had been reduced to $11 3/8. If you don't understand the stock market, just know that, in that scene, 1/8 of a dollar is a lot to squawk about.

Insulted by Stanton's undercutting, Buffet responded by ... buying more stock. So much stock, in fact, he became majority owner of the company. His first act of business? Fire Stanton.

... Buffett has since described the buyout as both an act of spite and the "dumbest" investment he'd ever made.

Revenge represents an investment of emotional and spiritual resources; the poorest investment of emotional and spiritual resources.

Proverbs 19:11

<sup>11</sup> A person's wisdom yields patience; it is to one's glory to overlook an offense.

I love you all,

Tim
