Criticism

Theodore Roosevelt once said these words:

"It is not the critic who counts; not the man who points out how the strong man stumbled or where the doer of deeds could have done them better. The credit belongs to the man who is actually in the arena; whose face is marred by dust and sweat and blood; who strives valiantly; who errs, and comes short again and again, because there is no effort without error and shortcoming; who does actually try to do the deed; who knows the great enthusiasm, the great devotion and spends himself in a worthy cause; who, at the worst, if he fails, at least fails while daring greatly.

Far better is it to dare mighty things, to win glorious triumphs even though checkered by failure, than to rank with those poor spirits who neither enjoy nor suffer much because they live in the gray twilight that knows neither victory nor defeat."

On several occasions in his life, Nehemiah was openly criticized, falsely accused, and grossly misunderstood. Each time, he kept his cool, rolled with the punch, considered the source, refused to get discouraged, went to God in prayer, stayed on the ladder, and kept building the wall.

One of the occupational hazards of being a leader is receiving criticism. Many have faded out of leadership because of intense criticism. I believe that the leader who does anything that is different or worthwhile can always count on some criticism.

Galatians 6:9

Let us not become weary in doing good, for at the proper time we will reap a harvest if we do not give up.

I love you all, Tim
