Mother's Love

This is a story I found in some of my files the other day that I wanted to share with you this Mother's Day.

I loved you enough to ask where you are going, with whom, and what time you would be home.

I loved you enough to insist that you save your money and buy a bike for yourself even though I could afford to buy one for you.

I loved you enough to be silent and let you discover that your new best friend was a jerk.

I loved you enough to make you pay for the toy you had taken and to tell the clerk, "I stole this yesterday, and I want to pay for it."

I loved you enough to stand over you for two hours while you cleaned your room, a job that should have taken 15 minutes.

I loved you enough to let you see anger, disappointment, and tears in my eyes. Children should know that their parents aren't perfect.

I loved you enough to let you assume the responsibility for your actions even when the penalties were so harsh, they almost broke my heart.

But most of all, I loved you enough to say NO when I knew you would hate me for it. ... Those were the most difficult battles of all. I am glad I won them, because in the end, you won too. And someday when your children are old enough to understand the logic that motivates parents, you will tell them.

Cherish the time you have with your mother and learn from the many things she continues to teach you.

Proverbs 31:26

²⁶ When she speaks, her words are wise, and she gives instructions with kindness.

I love you all, Tim
