An Unforgettable Wedding

I read the following quote this week. "Truth be told, most weddings, as lovely as they are, are forgettable—except your own, and the ones on bridges, or at The Dump. Unforgettable weddings usually have an unpredictable facet—like a fainting bride, or a cold-footed no-show groom, or a bridesmaid who fell in the mud on the way in the door, or a smiling minister who repeatedly and confidently calls the bride and groom by the wrong names. Jesus, his mother and his friends attended an unforgettable wedding in Cana. People are still talking about this one today!"

Most people's lives, as lovely as they might be, are completely forgettable, except the ones with an unpredictable facet. Like the arrogant man who gives his life to the Lord and becomes Jesus' humble servant, or maybe the hard and unforgiving woman who encounters Christ and becomes warm and loving. These are the kind of lives that were well on their way to being forgettable when grace happened.

At the wedding, Jesus performed his first public miracle by turning the water into wine. Whatever else happened during the wedding celebration, this miracle made this an unforgettable wedding. Jesus performs no less a miracle every time He transforms a human heart from being ordinary to being the best it can be. It is water into wine all over again when Jesus shows up, and your life is forgettable no more.

I love you all,
Tim
