Finally the other disciple, who had reached the tomb first, also went inside. He saw and believed. John 20:8

The Bible Says...

JESUS SAID... "Put your finger here and see my hands" (John 20:27). He said this to Thomas the first time he saw Jesus after the resurrection. The other disciples informed him of the resurrection, but he was hesitant to believe. He said to them, "I won't believe it unless I see the nail wounds in His hands and put my fingers into them."

It is interesting that this is the only passage in all the Gospels that speaks of these nails. In all accounts of Jesus' crucifixion, there was never a mention of them, but that does not mean it did not happen. There is plenty of evidence that it did happen. Obviously, Thomas knew about the nails because he was an eyewitness and seeing those nail marks was the proof he needed. Another piece of reliable evidence is in the amazing prophetic Psalm 22. Here we read the words, "A company of evildoers encircles me; they have pierced my hands and feet." Fulfilled prophecy is the greatest testimony of all. One other passage in the Bible teaches that the Mosaic Law was nailed to the cross (Colossians 2:14).

Though referenced only a few times in the Bible, these nails have become prominent in our minds. For instance, it is common for us to say that our sins are nailed to the cross. Even though the Bible never says these words, is it true? The short answer is yes. Considering that Jesus was made to be our sin (2Corinthians 5:21), Jesus being nailed to the cross is tantamount to our sins being nailed to the cross. Certainly, our sins are part of those things that were symbolically carried to and left on the cross of Jesus.
