THE BIBLE SAYS...

APOSTLE PAUL SAID... "If we confess our sins, He is faithful and just to forgive us our sins and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness" (1 John 1:9). A dark time in the history of God's people was when the Babylonians sieged Jerusalem and the southern kingdom of Judah. Those that were not killed were taken captive and forcibly moved to the country of Babylon. Jeremiah counseled them to accept it and they started a new life in a new country. Thus, there would be at least one generation that had never seen the old land. They never experienced being a free people. They never saw the Temple of God. They would only have the stories of times long gone.

What they did have was the promise of God in Jeremiah 29:10, "When seventy years are completed for Babylon, I will visit you, and I will fulfill to you my promise and bring you back to this place." This same God had allowed them to be taken captive. He did not protect them from Babylon. Why would they believe that He would now restore and save them? Sometimes God's promises and current situations do not appear to line up.

We then read in Ezra and Nehemiah the amazing story of restoration. God did what He said He would do. We learn from these events about God's steadfast love. God never stopped loving them. He forgave them and restored them. We must learn to put our trust in God. He is faithful and just. We, like Israel of old, are challenged at times with trusting God when we are going through dark times. God's promises are real. He does what He says He will do. He never stops loving us and His promise is that He will forgive those who confess their sins.
