The Bible Says

Apostle Paul said, "If Christ has not been raised, your faith is futile, and you are still in your sins" (1 Corinthians 15:17). The resurrection of Jesus Christ is one of the foundations upon which Christianity is built. The virgin birth, the deity of Christ, Jesus' atonement for sin, and His crucifixion are non-negotiable truths, without which Christianity could not exist. Jesus' resurrection from the dead was the crowning achievement that forever separates Him from any other religious leader who has ever been or will ever live. No other religious figure in history has ever prophesied His own death and resurrection—and then accomplished it.

The fact that Jesus rose from the dead matters because it fulfilled prophecy. Jesus prophesied His own resurrection in Mark 8:31. The rest of the Bible prophesied the resurrection fifty-seven more times. Many fell victim to the heinous Roman punishment of crucifixion, but the bodies of those other people are still in their graves. Jesus' tomb is empty. If Jesus never rose from the dead, there would be no compelling reason to believe that He is who He said He is. But the fact is that He did rise again, confirming His claim to be God.

It matters because only through His resurrection has He conquered death, and sin, and Satan. It matters because our justification hinges on it. "He was delivered over to death for our sins and was raised to life for our justification" (Romans 4:25). A dead Savior cannot save, but we have a living Savior who justifies us and makes intercession for us. The fact that Jesus rose from the dead is fundamental to our faith. We see in 1 Corinthians 15, that if Christ had not been raised, our preaching would be useless. Our faith would be futile, and we would all be eternally lost. Jesus' resurrection is the only thing that gives us hope in this life.
