The Bible Says

Peace Comes From God

Apostle Paul said, "The peace of God, which transcends all understanding, will guard your hearts and your minds in Christ Jesus" (Philippians 4:7). He is telling us that it is greater than our ability to fully comprehend. We may not be able to measure it, explain every part of it, or completely grasp its depth. But we can understand enough about God's peace for it to change the way we live. In fact, Paul tells us what this peace does. It guards our hearts and minds. In Galatians 5:22, he names peace as a fruit of the Spirit. If peace is something the Spirit produces in us, it is something God wants to grow in our lives. In teaching this fruit, some like to equate each quality with physical fruit. It has come to my attention that the one for Peace is Peach. I can only say, "Well, of course it is."

But unlike physical fruit, spiritual fruit is produced as we walk with God. God can create within us a peace with Him that begins to overflow into every other part of our lives. And that peace begins with our relationship with God. Sin creates conflict with God (Isaiah 59:2). Our choices can disturb the relationship God desires to have with us. But through Christ, God has provided reconciliation. And once we understand that God can and is willing to do this, it will change our lives completely. It affects our relationships, our circumstances, our decisions, our worries, and even the way we face suffering. We begin to understand that even when we cannot control what is happening around us, we can still have confidence in the God who holds us closely in a relationship with Him. God wants His peace to take root in us, grow within us, and overflow into the way we live every day.
